1. Did You Know That The UK Has At Least 21 Politicians Who Are Members Of The World Economic Forum ?

From present day politicians to past politicians to previous Prime Ministers the UK is heavily invested in the World Economic Forum. This one graphic says it all.

New 🧵 1/18

2. It doesn't seem to matter the colour of your politics to be a part of the World Economic Forum. Whether you are a blue Conservative, red Labour or Liberal Democrat it is irrelevant in the bigger scheme of things.

3. I'm going to break this 🧵 down by present day Conservative and Labour members of WEF, then former PMs, previous politicians and House of Lords members. As the HOL is so inextricably linked to HOC it is only right to include them.

4. Conservative Politicians

Boris Johnson - Prime Minister

Dominic Raab - Deputy Prime Minister

Matt Hancock - Former Secretary of State for Health and Social Care

Sajid Javid - Secretary of State for Health and Social Care

Boris Johnson

Foreign Secretary, Foreign and Commonwealth Office of the United Kingdom

6. Former Prime Ministers

Probably the one man who has closest ties to the WEF is ex-PM Tony Blair. He almost seems to be the UK WEF spokesman. Advocates for Covid passports & has received $28m from BMGF. His wife Cherie Blair is also WEF & received 100k.

A real family affair

Tony Blair

Prime Minister of the United Kingdom (1997-2007); Founder, Tony Blair Institute

Tony Blair served as Prime Minister of Great Britain and Northern Ireland from 1997 to 2007--the only Labour leader in the party's 100-year history to win three consecutive elections. During his time in office, the UK economy enjoyed record growth. His government made major improvements in Britain's public services, particularly healthcare and education, through a programme of investment and reform. Britain's first ever statutory minimum wage was introduced. Prime Minister Blair led the successful London 2012 Olympics bid; and oversaw the peace process for Northern Ireland. He introduced the first elected Mayor for London, the Scottish Parliament, Welsh Assembly and Northern Ireland Assembly. He was a staunch advocate of an interventionist foreign policy, in particular in Kosovo, Sierra Leone, Afghanistan and Iraq. He trebled the UK's aid programme for Africa and introduced the first environmental programme in the UK to combat climate change. Since leaving office Tony Blair has spent most of his time working on three areas: supporting governments to deliver effectively for their people, working for peace in the Middle East, and countering extremism. He has established the Tony Blair Institute for Global Change to work on some of the most difficult challenges in the world today, including how the centre ground of politics renews itself with practical policy solutions.

Cherie Blair

Founder, Cherie Blair Foundation for Women

Leading lawyer and committed campaigner for women's rights; 2008, set up the Cherie Blair Foundation for Women to help women build small and growing businesses in developing and emerging markets so that they can contribute to their economies and have a stronger voice in their societies. Active campaigner on equality and human rights issues. Former Ambassador, London 2012. Closely involved with charities with a special emphasis on women and children. Member, International Center for Research on Women's Leadership Council; Ambassador, GSMA mWomen Programme; Honorary Vice-President, Barnados; President, Loomba Foundation; Ambassador, Scope; Trustee, Africa Justice Foundation; Patron, various charities, including Breast Cancer Care and SolarAid. Vice-Chair, US Secretary of State's International Council for Women's Business Leadership; Honorary Chair, World Justice Project. Recipient, CBE (2013) for services to women's issues and to charity in the UK and Overseas.
