1. Why Have None Of The Following Been Properly Covered In MSM In 2020/2021

Great Reset, Klaus Schwab, Event 201, World Economic Forum, Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, UN Agenda 2030, Trilateral Commission, Bilderberg Group, Build Back Better, 4th IR

How many blank looks would you get from friends if you were to mention the following

Great Reset, Klaus Schwab, Event 201, World Economic Forum, Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, UN Agenda 2030, Trilateral Commission, Bilderberg Group, Build Back Better, Council Of Europe, 4th IR

3. The general consensus from reading the comments was that the majority of people have no idea about any of them. Why is that ? I think we already know the answer. Very little of it is covered in any depth in MSM but I needed proof.

4. I decided to jump in a little further and see how many of these people, events, foundations, groups were covered in Irish media from the outset of the “pandemic” up until today. That would give a pretty good idea of how much the general public actually know.

5. I’ve used The Irish Times as I have access to the archives which makes it easy for me to carry out the research. I have to thank the better half for spending her hard earned money as a subscriber as I certainly wouldn’t waste mine on the IT

Let’s have a look

6. Great Reset

Considering the buzz all over Twitter for the last 6 months has been about the Great Reset you would imagine journalists would cover it in depth. Hardly at all.

7. Laura Slattery in the IT said

If 2021 becomes the year of “The Great Reset”, as the theme-keen World Economic Forum contends it should be, then 2020 has been the year of “the great pivot”

irishtimes.com/business/media...

8. Ross O'Carroll-Kelly, the satirical fictional Irish character, created by journalist Paul Howard wrote amusingly about the Great Reset irishtimes.com/life-and-style...

“I would,” the old man goes, “except I shan’t be getting the vaccine at all!”

“Excuse me?”

“CHORLES HAS BEEN READING UP ON IT,” the old dear goes. “IT SEEMS IT’S ALL PART OF SOME BIG CONSPIRACY.”

Me and Sorcha are both, like, suddenly silent.

He goes, “I think we’ve lost the connection, Fionnuala! Hello? Hello? No, I knew it was too good to be true!”

“We can hear you perfectly well,” Sorcha goes. “We’re just in, like, shock here?”

“Well,” the old man goes, “shock doesn’t even begin to describe my reaction to what I’ve discovered over the past few weeks! It seems this thing – let’s not even dignify it by giving it a name, eh, Kicker? – was created in a laboratory as port of the Great Reset!”

I’m like, “The great what?”

“The Great Reset! Oh, come on, you two, you must know about the plan by the world’s political and financial elite to temporarily cripple the planet, socially and economically, so as to create the conditions that will allow a restructuring of how the world is governed?”

“Okay, how come I’ve never heard about this? Mind you, I wouldn’t even walk into a room if I thought the news was on in there.”

“Oh, you won’t hear about this on the news, Ross! You see, they don’t want you to know the truth! They don’t want you to know that this so-called Covid-19 was created on a petri dish as port of a plan to place the entire planet in a two-year cryogenic freeze, during which time the people of the world would come to accept military-style, stop-and-search policing as being in their own best interests – chaps with red hair, Ross, not out of Templemore a wet weekend, asking you where you're going and whether you consider a simple Cohiba Robusto to be an essential item!

9. Using a satirical piece is quite an effective way to debunk "conspiracy theories". People will read it, laugh and move on without thinking of the more serious implications.

Few will bother to research it further as it is intended as satire

10. In January when the annual World Economic Forum takes place there is coverage of the WEF and Klaus Schwab. It also gave the IT an opportunity to bash Donald Trump. One of their favourite past-times

irishtimes.com/business/econo...

11. Within the past year the World Economic Forum was mentioned 25 times in the IT. There is always a flurry of activity around the time the WEF takes place in Davos every year then it hardly merits a mention until the next one appears.

12. The way the articles are written portrays the WEF as being a force of good discussing sustainability, climate change etc.

It wouldn't for one moment be involved in any nefarious activities or would it ?

irishtimes.com/business/econo...

13. From the gossip perspective of who Ireland's richest billionaires are then using the WEF is perfect clickbait as the masses love reading about that crap.

14. Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation.

Who doesn't love a benevolent philanthropist who takes from the rich to give to the poor. A modern day Robin Hood. My bad. I got that wrong. I meant to say take from the poor to give to the rich.

15. The BMGF featured a few times in 2020/21 but only ever being portrayed in a positive light

There is information on everything from a detailed list of global dashboards tracking the spread of Covid-19 to a section called “Cash for CovTech”, which keeps tabs on grants, funding and jobs relating to tackling the coronavirus. For example, the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation has just announced it is partnering with the Wellcome Trust and Mastercard to put $125 million (€112 million) in seed funding toward an accelerator designed to speed up development of Covid-19 treatments.

16. No mention made of the fact that all 3 are in the WEF and would have the potential to profit handsomely from the "pandemic" in the upcoming year. The article was on March 19th 2020

They are all just doing it out of the goodness of their heart naturally.

17. Event 201, UN Agenda 2030, Bilderberg Group and the Trilateral Commission don't merit a mention at all.

Event 201 was a defining event yet has been whitewashed. I even went back to 2019 when it took place.

And everything is building to UN Agenda 2030 yet it's ignored

18. "Build Back Better" is mentioned in the context of NGOs who are on board with the Great Reset such as Trocaire & Oxfam.

For example, the Biden campaign in the US, and a campaign in the UK driven by hundreds of civil society organisations and academics (as well as Trocaire in Ireland) have adopted the slogan “Build Back Better” from the UN Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction. The slogan refers to developing resilience after a crisis through policy initiatives. Public investment should correspondingly go beyond temporary fixes to envisioning how improvements in infrastructure, human capital and collaboration at a community level can prepare a society for shocks.

We promise to keep working hard to tackle the inequalities and injustices that drive poverty across the world, to be there to help people build back better when disaster strikes and to support people to lift themselves out of poverty and thrive.

But we couldn't make this promise without the people who support our work – people who give us reason to hope. – Yours, etc,

19. Even the Universities are in on the act with advertising in the IT. Queens University Belfast are looking for people to do their urban planning courses to get involved in the future creation of "Smart Cities"

All part of UN Agenda 2030

The advertisement features a red-tinted background image of students gathered around a table, looking at architectural plans. In the top left, the text reads: "Study Planning at Queen's MSc City Planning & Design MSc Planning & Development". In the top right is the Queen's University Belfast crest and logo. The central text asks: "WHAT'S YOUR PLAN? WANT TO BE AN URBAN PLANNER OR DESIGNER? Our MSc courses offer routes to professional accreditation and work for a client organisation during study". Below this, it says: "Be the next gen to transform our urban landscape". At the bottom left, it states: "Ranked 1st among UK planning schools for satisfaction with Teaching (Guardian University League Tables, 2020)". At the bottom right, it provides contact information: "To find out more please contact: askeps@qub.ac.uk". The bottom of the ad features the website "QUB.AC.UK" and the slogan "BUILD BACK BETTER" in yellow text on a black background.

20. The other time "Build Back Better" is used is when the papers refer to it as a slogan being used by Boris Johnson & Joe Biden or when it is being tied into sustainability

21. The 4th IR was mentioned 4 times in the last year. The most interesting article was a Sponsored one by Science Foundation Ireland. On the committee is Jun Ni a co-chair of the Global Future Council on Advanced Manufacturing and Production at the WEF

confirm.ie/scientific-adv...

22. Prof Conor McCarthy, also on the board fronted this paid sponsorship piece.

If you see anything being funded by SFI then it probably is tied to the WEF

23. So what exactly can we take from the coverage. Firstly, the majority of the terms are just mentioned in passing in the body of articles. There are no investigative articles at all. Everything connected to the WEF is a "force of good"

24. Maybe the journalists feel they just aren't worth investigating. Or maybe the Irish Times feels that if they were, people may wake up as to the bigger agenda that is going on underneath peoples noses but they are too brainwashed to see it.

25. Or could it be something to do with Point 1 in this tweet from last month. You decide.

How To Stage A Coup

1. Take over the news
2. Put an idiot you control in power
3. Lockdown the capital
4. Censor and punish dissenters
5. Establish curfews
6. Limit travel
7. Limit gatherings
8. Destroy the economic base of potential resistance
